

Our Black infants are 6x more likely to die* because of racial bias.

San Diego can't accept this. If you're pregnant, having a healthy baby begins with getting the treatment you deserve. Having a doctor that listens to you is more important than ever.

Know your rights and get the facts on what to talk about at your checkups at BlackLegacyNowSD.com

Tomorrow's Black legacy deserves protecting today.

Darielle, Emerald Hills

Black
Legacy
Now

black infant health
Empowering Pregnant and Mothering Black Women

Funded by the California Department of Public Health, Maternal, Child & Adolescent Health Division

Source: Based on comparison of San Diego County African-American/Black and White 2020-2022 average infant mortality rates (9.6 vs. 1.5 deaths per 1,000 live births, respectively). Data from State of California, Department of Public Health, Center for Health Statistics and Informatics, Birth Cohort Statistical Master Files. Statistics prepared by County of San Diego, Health and Human Services Agency, Public Health Services.